ROUND HONG KONG'S CINEMA THEATRES

MAIL REVIEW"TELL ENGLAND"—
QUEEN'S THEATRE.

"Tell England," now showing at the Queen's Theatre, will rank as one of the greatest of all films.

It is an epic depicting with stark and searing realism, the disastrous Gallipoli campaign. The attack and withdrawal from this death-dealing Inferno, has been authentically handled, and whilst the emotional value has been sparingly used, the whole production is profoundly, almost intolerably moving.

The Admiralty gave its tremendous support in the perfecting of this British masterpiece, by recreating the naval scene with the Mediterranean Fleet in action,
whilst General Sir Ian Hamilton appears in the film in his original commanding role of the Allied Forces at Gallipoli.

The powerful cast is headed by Carl Harbord and Fay Compton; under the directing genius of Anthony Asquith. It is without doubt one of the most absorbing sound films to come to this Colony, and will leave a lasting impression upon the audience.

MAIL REVIEW"THE MISLEADING LADY"—
KING'S THEATRE.

An unwilling maid and a twentieth-century cave-man admirer provide the entertainment in the "Misleading Lady" now showing at the King's Theatre.

Edmund Lowe is the suitor whose proposals of marriage are rejected by Claudette Colbert. Enraged and dauntless, he abducts her, woos her, and, in a succession of piquant episodes, finally succeeds in making her like it.

Both of these artists are film stars of the greatest magnitude.
Edmund Lowe will be remembered chiefly for his priceless portrayal in "What Price Glory," and Claudette Colbert for her dramatic performance in "Manslaughter."

With Stuart Erwin enriching the production with his inimitable wit, the audience is assured of an evening's pleasant entertainment.
Stuart Walker is the capable director of this Paramount picture.

MAIL REVIEW"SHADOW OF THE LAW"— ORIENTAL THEATRE.

The story of an innocent man caught in the toils of the law; his thrilling flight from prison to obtain material proof of his innocence; and a romance woven into these dramatic events are offered in the Paramount production "Shadow of the Law," which is now showing at the Oriental Theatre.

That great stage and screen favourite, William Powell plays the leading role of a young engineer who has been wrongly convicted of murder, and sentenced to prison for life.

Mr. Powell is supported by a strong cast, of which the most prominent are Natalie Moorhead, Marion Shilling and Regis Toomey.

MAIL REVIEW"HEAVEN ON EARTH"—
MAJESTIC THEATRE.

Lew Ayres and Anita Louise are co-starred in "Heaven on Earth" which is now showing at the Majestic Theatre. This intense drama tells of the life of a boy, who was adopted by the man who had killed his father.

It will be remembered that this film enjoyed a successful run upon the occasion of its first release in this Colony.

MAIL REVIEW"TO-NIGHT OR NEVER"— CENTRAL THEATRE.

By special request, the Central Theatre is now re-screening "Tonight Or Never" featuring Gloria Swanson.

It will be remembered that this film is based on the stage success of the same name, with which the late Mr. D. Belasco delighted Broadway.

MAIL REVIEW"GUN SMOKE"—GARDEN
THEATRE.

Meet Richard Arlen in a new type of Western comedy-drama entitled "Gun Smoke" which is now playing at the Garden Theatre.

This Paramount Picture is a departure from the old two-fisted and two-gunned thrillers which used to excite youthful audiences in the early days of the movie industry.

The cast includes Mary Brian, Eugene Pallette, William Boyd and Louise Fazenda.

MAIL REVIEW"THE MAN IN POSSESSION"—
STAR THEATRE.

Robert Montgomery gives a delightful performance in "The Man in Possession" now showing at the Star Theatre.

A good-for-nothing son turns bailiff, and a charming young lady turns adventuress. By a queer coincidence, they are thrown together, and a sparkling romance is the result.

The strong cast includes Beryl
Mercer, Irene Purcell and C.
Aubrey Smith.

OFFICIAL SOURCES."LOVERS COURAGEOUS"— QUEEN'S THEATRE.

In "Lovers Courageous," opening on Sunday next at the Queen's Theatre, Beryl Mercer plays Robert Montgomery's mother for the second feminine lead. Miss Mercer, well-known character actress, has played the part of mother to almost every screen star in Hollywood, one of her greatest screen roles having been that of Gary Cooper's adopted mother in "Seven Days Leave." Miss Mercer's first experience as Robert Montgomery's mother was in "The Man in Possession."

OFFICIAL SOURCES."THE OUTSIDER"—
KING'S THEATRE.

During the filming of "The Outsider," Harry Lachman, who is not only a famous director of films, but also a famous artist, took so much interest in his cast that he even supervised the making-up of Glenore Pointing before he was ready to shoot.

It is Mr. Lachman's marvellous study of detail that gives his pictures, especially "The Outsider," a charm and 'indescrutable' atmosphere. The film is a screen version of Dorothy Brandon's international success which Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Pictures will present to the King's Theatre next Sunday.

ELONGATED TENNIS

Paris.
A new game called longue paume is receiving enthusiastic attention from the French. It is believed to have no English equivalent and is played much like ordinary lawn tennis but on a much longer court and without a net. The racket used is smaller than the average tennis racket, and the ball is curiously light in weight.

FRENCH DIVORCE LAW

Paris, August 15.
The French Senate is seeking to revive a project broadening the divorce code so as to allow suit for divorce on the grounds of criminal conviction. Hitherto, the banishment of husband or wife to a penal colony was insufficient grounds in itself but the plan is to change the code so that any conviction, and punishment which reflects on husband or wife may be grounds.

C.B.A. TO ENTER TEAM IN MAMAK SHIELD.

Francis Again Elected
— Captain.

LAST NIGHT'S MEETING.

A successful season was reported at a meeting of the men's hockey section of the Central British Association held at the Clubhouse, King's Park yesterday evening. The Secretary, Mr. C. C. Francis, was in the chair. It was decided among other things, to enter a C.B.A. team in the Mamak Hockey Tournament, of which they were runners-up last season.

Addressing the meeting, Mr. Francis said that on the whole the Club had enjoyed a successful hockey season. They had played 28 matches, won, 20, lost 7, and drawn one, and were runners up in the Mamak Tournament, with 18 points. The Club had scored 78 goals for 26 against. Principal goal-scorers were:—C. C. Francis 27, W. G. Johnson 12, T. S. D. Whitley 9, J. P. White 8, W. H. G. Hirst 7, M. Well 5.

During the year four new members joined, Messrs. L. W. Tippet, G. Duncan, W. G. Johnson and D. Davies, to whom the Club owed a hearty vote of thanks for their enthusiasm.

Mr. Francis suggested the formation of an "A" eleven, to consist of 1st XI players who were keen to play during the week, and any other members. He mentioned that there were a number of boys of the Central British School who were keen to participate. The suggestion met with approval.

It was also decided to play Mamak Tournament matches on Saturdays and Sundays, thus allowing for better light. Practice matches, on Tuesdays and Thursdays, will commence early in September.

The following officers were elected—1st XI Captain—Mr. C. C. Francis, Vice Captain—Mr. W. G. Johnson. "A" XI Captain—Mr. E. MacNider.

Summer Tourney.

FUI SHING FAVOURITES.

The Electric Company registered their second success in the Chinese Summer Football Tournament yesterday when they beat Sam Kwong by the surprisingly large margin of 5 goals to nil at Caroline Hill.

The tournament is now nearing conclusion and the Fui Shing team are considered the most likely winners of Dr. Wu's Cup.

The following are the results of the Tournament to date:—

Round The Greens By "Straight Wood"

Congratulations to the Craigengower Club on achieving the unique distinction of winning both divisions of the League. The feat is without precedent in the history of Hong Kong bowls and it has been accomplished by good all-round play. The club has very sound skips in both teams, Omar and Bradbury being first and second in the winning skips table, whilst every man has pulled his weight to bring about a series of convincing wins. Their play all round has been most steady, with touches of real brilliance when occasion has demanded.

The first team has not been beaten since the opening match of the season, and I think they will maintain this record until the conclusion of the programme. Their match to-morrow is against the Club de Recreio, whom they recently overcame by a useful margin when playing at King's Park, and I expect to see them win by at least fifteen shots on this occasion.

Another match at the Valley is between the Police and the Kowloon Cricketers, and in the former's winning mood one cannot help but pick them as the winners. They scored a good victory over the Bowling Green Club last week after a very exciting finish. The score was all square with one hand to go, but the Police team's past experience in close finishes stood them in good stead to enable them to score a good two for the match.

Talkoo beat the Bowling Green Club at Kowloon a fortnight ago, and on their own ground I think they will repeat the performance, although the visitors have, I noticed, changed their team in an endeavour to win and so be with the Police for the bottom position in the league. To do so they must win this match, and I think they will.

The Civil Servants have to travel to Kowloon Dock, which has not proved a happy hunting ground for visitors this year and I think they will struggle for a point. The Police have a good game at the Valley, and I think they will win it, but all round the Valley is the ninth team, and I think they will win it. The Civil Servants have a good game at the Valley, and I think they will win it. The Police have a good game at the Valley, and I think they will win it.

The same remark applies to the Civil Service juniors, who receive a visit from the Hong Kong Electric team who do not seem to have had much luck this season. The home team were soundly beaten on Saturday by the Kowloon Bowling Green Club, Drake scoring no less than forty shots to his opponents' 13.

The Yacht Club have prospects of being runners up, so that they cannot afford to make any mistakes in their next two matches. They will go all out for a win against the Kowloon Cricket Club whom they visit this week, and I think they will succeed in taking the spoils.

Talkoo juniors are the other visitors, and they should give the Bowling Green men a good game. Their last engagement at Talkoo, ended in a win for the home team by the small margin of four shots, but I think the home team will be a winning combination to-morrow.

WEEKLY RULE

Rate or Division of the Green.

1. The green shall be divided into spaces called rinks, not less than 19 nor more than 21 feet in width, numbered consecutively, the centre of each rink being marked on the bank at each end by a pin or other device, and the four corners of the rink by pins driven into the ditch. The side boundary of the rink shall stretch from bank to bank.

(To prevent disputes, the pins at the opposite ends of the rink which shall be driven in the base of the word edge, shall be driven by the green, shall be marked by a line drawn across the green, and where practicable, the boundary pins of an outside rink shall be placed at least two feet from the side ditch. It is recommended that the bank be not less than 18 inches in height, with an angle from the green of not more than 120 degrees.)

The point which I wish to emphasize is that the pins at the opposite ends of the rink shall be driven by the green, shall be marked by a line drawn across the green, and where practicable, the boundary pins of an outside rink shall be placed at least two feet from the side ditch. It is recommended that the bank be not less than 18 inches in height, with an angle from the green of not more than 120 degrees.)

RADIO HOCKEY TEAM DEFEATED

Second Win For H.K.S.R.A.

The Hong Kong Sports Radio Association (H.K.S.R.A.) team defeated the Kowloon team in a radio hockey match played at the Kowloon Cricket Club ground yesterday afternoon.

The match was played on a specially constructed radio hockey field, and the H.K.S.R.A. team, consisting of Messrs. J. S. Smith, L. Jack, H. O. Huber, and K. Hasse, defeated the Kowloon team by a score of 3 goals to 1.

The H.K.S.R.A. team will play the Kowloon team again on Saturday afternoon.

CHINESE R.C. TAKE
THIRD PLACE.Beat Recreio Mixed Doubles Team.

The last match in the Mixed Doubles Tennis League was decided yesterday when the Chinese Recreation Club beat the Club de Recreio by 6½ sets to 2½.

As the result of their victory the C.R.C. advance to third place in the table, displacing the Kowloon Cricket Club. The Recreio have again experienced a very lean season, not even securing the one victory they gained last year.

CRAIGENGOWER'S BID FOR THE TITLE.

To-day's Big Game.

What promises to be one of the best matches in the Tennis League season will be witnessed at Happy Valley this afternoon at 5.10 p.m. when the Craiggower Cricket Club entertain the Chinese Recreation Club in the "B" Division.

The winners of this match will in all probability become the 1932 title-holders. The home team have won all their seven matches and the Chinese, the holders, are going on the Courts for their last game with an unbeaten record behind them.

Craiggower, who are not represented in the premier league, offer a severe challenge to the holders, and on paper look to be the better combination.

The following are the teams: Craiggower: J. W. Leonard and G. Lai, W. J. Howard and Y. Hochman, E. Zimmerman and B. Chou.

Chinese: B. C. Lai, Wong-tung and In Tak-chau, W. C. Hung and C. C. Chu, Ng Kan-chuen and Tso Ping-tun.

Smith Should Rise
to World Fame.Revelations of a Morning Practice.

TEMPERAMENT AND SKILL

(By Riso Levi).

In my last article I gave reasons why Sidney Smith, the young Doncaster professional, is fully entitled to be considered Britain's fourth best cue-man. Also, how vastly his position will be improved if, in order that professional billiards may be made brighter and infinitely more attractive to the general public, whose patronage our leading cue-men have to depend for a large part of their yearly income, close-cannon play is severely restricted next season.

Joe Davis is a great player largely because he has the correct billiards temperament. He is a cue-man of dauntless courage, and never allows himself to feel crushed, no matter how magnificently his opponent may be playing.

How true this is was strikingly demonstrated when Lindrum made his world's record break of 4,137. In no way disheartened, and full of confidence in himself, the great Chesterfield player went to the table when the applause had subsided, and actually played out time with a great break of over 1,000 (unfinished).

The Right Stuff.

Sidney Smith, fortunately for himself, is endowed with the same temperament. I know him well, quite apart from billiards, and it is this intimate knowledge of him that convinced me, some years ago, that he is built of the stuff of which champions are made.

About three years ago, he gave utterance to these words during a conversation I was having with him:—"They may beat me, Mr. Levi, but they can never break my heart."

I remember being very much struck with this remark at the time. It showed the grit and determination of the youth—he was only about 20 or 21 then—because it is a heart-breaking experience for a really good player to be hopelessly overwhelmed by a still greater cue-man.

The first time I saw Sidney at the table was in March, 1929. He was having some morning practice, and I witnessed him make two breaks of well over 200 and one of close on 400, and I quickly realised what a very great player he was destined to become in the near future.

Perfect Style.

It was not so much the size of the breaks as the manner in which they were compiled which appealed to me. A few days later, in a Press article, I wrote of the Doncaster professional as follows:—

"Sidney Smith's style is perfect. He plays easily and quickly, and he has at his command all the strokes which are the prerogative of the world's greatest cue-men."

"And when the day comes, as assuredly it must come, when he is our professional champion, I do not think Sidney Smith will suffer from a swelled head, because he is well aware that the highest popularity is only attained when greatness is allied with modesty."

And what I wrote then, I can repeat with still more confidence to-day.

Heights Unknown.

I have closely studied the play of great professionals for more than 40 years, in addition to having made a serious study of the game myself. It will, therefore, be readily granted that I am well able to appraise Sidney Smith's play at its correct value after having watched him at the table 30 times, and it is my well-considered opinion that, given continued good health, the Doncaster professional will in time rise to billiards heights undreamed of to-day.

It certainly requires no prophetic vision to see the day, and this is the near future, when Sidney Smith will be acclaimed one of the world's leading cue-men.

With extremely rare exceptions, the rising young professional has to contend with the difficulty of getting engagements. He has to make his living with his cue, but, as the rank and file of players will only pay to see the world's greatest cue-men, he is seldom afforded the opportunity of playing in public.

Three Years' Contract.

A few years ago we had three promising young professionals—Donaldson, a young Scotsman, whom I have never had the pleasure of meeting, Joe Earlam, and Willie Leigh. These English cue-men I know very well. Earlam, after a long struggle, had to give up billiards and go into business, and Leigh is now running a billiards hall in Derby.

Sidney Smith has been much more fortunate. A celebrated firm of table-makers gave him a contract for two years ago—I believe for three years—to play on their tables at so much a year, and during the last two seasons I do not think Sidney has missed playing matches or exhibitions for three days.

Perhaps no game requires such intense concentration as billiards for long-sustained correct play, and consequently worry of any kind, or even thoughts of anything outside the game, have a deteriorating effect on one's play.

I know this well from experience in my own play at home. I may have crossed the hundred line and be well on for a 200 break when, for some unexplainable reason, my mind wanders to the question of some newspaper contract which is under consideration. Shall I get the hoped-for order or not?

No Side Thoughts.

I may get the shot I am about to play, but some slight lack of concentration—indeed, in words—causes me to play it incorrectly, perhaps with just a little too much pace or with not quite enough.

In order to play billiards really well, even a great cue-man has to be very much like a machine, with not a thought outside the game.

Sidney Smith has no worries of any kind. He is young and healthy. He is happily married and has one (Continued in next Column.)

Foxy Should Shatter
Ruth Record

If the sentimentalists among sports fans have to live to see Babe Ruth's home run record shattered, they'll have the consolation of knowing it wasn't accomplished by a pop-fly artist with a short right field fence for a target, writes Loren Disney, the Associated Press Sports Editor.

And that one Jimmy Foxx of the Philadelphia Athletics, stands an excellent chance of passing the Bambino's hitherto believed untouchable record of 60 for a season is becoming more evident every day.

Jimmy in his great assault on the home run record has hit some of the mightiest blasts ever seen, those of Babe Ruth not excluded. On several occasions this season he has cleared the double-tiered pavilion in Shibe Park, the ball landing in the street.

It is 334 feet from the plate along the left field foul line to the flag pole in the home park of the A's, which gives a pretty clear idea of the blow needed to give a ball the trajectory necessary to clear stands at that distance. Only Harry Hallman and Lou Gehrig have ever got a ball over them once.

Foxx has hit a couple high into the centre field bleachers at Washington, the centre field zone

With everything in his favour, I shall be greatly surprised if young Smith does not cause a stir in the billiards world next season.

FOR THE HANDICAP GOLFER

The Stroke Out Of The Rough

By CHARLES WHITCOMBE

The plea of the golfer that the rough beyond the fairways should be kept down to reasonable length has been considerably met at most clubs and it has done much to relieve congestion on busy courses. Besides go one likes to lose a ball that has strayed only slightly off the true line and when the grass is left knee high this is unfortunately possible.

But the rough must always be with us unless the wayward shot is to go unpunished and in those circumstances golf would not be the same. And the rough at this time of the year, even when it has been mown, is tough and unsympathetic. In fact the wise golfer does not take much liberty with it. If he has the right philosophy he says "There the ball lies and I had better get it out." So he takes a club fitting the conditions, it may even be a niblick, and cuts his loss.

There is, I know, always a strong temptation to attempt something more heroic. Suppose a player has landed in the rough from his drive. He will probably have walked forward with his club in his hand and on reaching the ball his first thought and hope if he wants length will be that he may use a wooden club, a brassie or at any rate a spoon. He wants to escape the punishment which may be his due. Many a time I have seen a player in this situation and he has put the driver which he still carries down behind the ball to discover what chance he has of getting the ball up and away from the unpromising lie. All too often he dismisses the obvious doubt which exists and risks it only to regret his venturesomeness.

Cutting Losses.
To the handicap golfer I would stress the wisdom of cutting his losses. In the new golfing world of Japan such a teaching would apparently be regarded as cowardly. The Japanese, we are told, are not even permitted to "play back from a bunker. But in these stern competitive days we cannot hold with this quixotic view, and though I always believe in going boldly for the shot, it is sheer folly to attempt more than can reasonably be accomplished. The principle of "safety first" must inevitably enter into golf, and the extent to which it is practised should be governed by the capacity of the player.

But recovering from the rough depends not merely on the choice of club. In the some cases so well is it achieved that it seems an art in itself. I believe it was Harry Vardon who once said that he liked to see James Braid in a bunker in order to have the pleasure of watching the shot out. Edward Ray, too, has accomplished some mighty feats in the rough. Both these players had the knack of being able to apply their tremendous striking power with wonderful exactness and effect.

There is undoubtedly a right and a wrong way of playing from rough grass. Indeed I may almost describe it as a stroke apart from the rest. First of all I suggest that the player should not attempt to put the club down behind the ball in the address in the usual manner because, as I will explain, he should try to keep it out of the grass, or avoid as much of it as possible.

It is in having to force the head of the club through the grass to get at the ball that the recovery is difficult. It obviously requires a firm grip and a good deal of power, but one should guard against holding the club too fiercely, for in that case the muscles of the arms will be contracted and it is almost certain that the swing will be too stiff to be properly effective. For you must swing. It is no use merely thumping the club down as if it were a hammer. The pressure of the hands ought to be no greater than is needed to keep control of the club when it comes in contact with the grass and its follow through is resisted.

An Upright Swing.
Now as to the swing. I have stated that the aim should be to cut through as little grass as possible and hence the club must come down acutely and nip in close behind the ball. So you want a more upright swing than usual. In making this the tendency will probably be to put most of the weight of the body forward on the left leg, but if this is done the direction of the club will be too straight and the effect will simply be to jab the ball out. You must not want the ball to come out but to carry forward and to attain this result the impetus of the follow through is required.

CONFESSIONS OF BOROTRA.A Near Breakdown
Against Vines.

FRANCE'S FUTURE.

Jean Borotra, who is, of course, a business man as well as a tennis star, was back at his office after his great victory over Ellsworth Vines in the first singles of the Davis Cup challenge round.

"I must confess," he said, "that I felt very nervous at the beginning of the match."

"I was not trained for it. I had not played this season on hard courts, where I am not so good generally. I had made up my mind long ago not to take part in the Davis Cup singles."

"You know, I was called upon at few days' notice to replace Lacoste. I felt I could not refuse, but I had a great apprehension."

"I played well, I must say; but the whole affair preyed on my nerves terribly, and if when I was leading by four in the last set I had lost my last match point, I felt I should have a nervous breakdown."

"Vines did not play as well as at Wimbledon and his service did not trouble me much. He tried to hit the ball as hard as he could, but he made many double-faults in that way. He is like me—prefers the grass of Wimbledon to hard courts."

"I hope that next year Lacoste will be able to play after a good training and that we will have new men in the team."

The shot is very similar to that exploited when the ball is exploded out of a bunker, and unless some weight is kept back on the right foot the club will go up and down in much the same way as a pump handle.

If the ball is in long grass another trouble is that the strands may twist themselves round the shaft. This is not easy to prevent, but the danger is lessened by the upright swing. Some players prefer a narrow-bladed club such as a jigger to make these recovery strokes. Others choose one with more loft, a mashie or even the powerful niblick. I think the selection must depend on the type of stroke that has to be played. For a bad lie I should pin my faith to the niblick.

The complicated machinery of Government in the United States is always a source of wonder and perplexity to outside observers and the tangled passage of most measures which are introduced by the various administrations surrounds the final destination of these bills with an atmosphere of mystery. But for all its complications, and intricacies the American system of Government possesses many sound and admirable features, notably that which empowers the President of the United States to veto any measure with which he is in disagreement. This veto is not necessarily final as Congress by a two-thirds majority may ultimately force the measure through. But the opposition of the President is usually sufficient to kill any particular bill and this power is regarded as an excellent safety-valve for the suppression of any misguided foolishness which might be expressed by a Congress. During the last session President Hayes encountered Amid many cries and protests, Congress did — at least on paper — balance the budget and levy new taxes to produce the required revenue. Nor must Congress be denied credit for what it resisted, as well as for what it did. Many foolish or dangerous bills got their quietus. Several of these, unfortunately for the Democratic party, like the bonus bill, and the Garner proposals to strew post offices thick as the leaves in Vallombrosa, easily passed the House only to be put to death in the Senate. There was no lack of mad projects. Perhaps rather more than the usual number of lunatic bills were introduced. But very few of them became law. The session might have ended with mutual congratulations by Senators and Representatives that they had not harmed the country nearly so much as they might have done. Yet it can hardly be doubted that Congress is a good deal discredited in public estimation. This was shown, among other evidences, by the frequent and passionate appeals to it to transact the public business speedily and go home. This desire was obviously shared by many members of Congress, but they were caught in the vast machinery of parliamentary delay. The true inference to be drawn from it all is the need of restoring government by party to its full vigor. A good working majority in both houses, disciplined to act together, co-operating heartily with the administration — that would be the highly desirable little more, but how much it would be! The elections in November may assist in presenting a solution.

Another of the enjoyable series of symphonic concerts is being given at the Metropolitan Hotel on Sunday, Nov. 10, commencing at 8:30 p.m. Mr. A. Goldman will conduct the orchestra in a concert of the most charming and popular music of the 19th century.

TUESDAY NEXT

The next all-mail for London will leave on the afternoon of Tuesday, August 30, for the home of Sir Gordon Rainsford, Baronet, at 10, Grosvenor Gardens, London, W.1.

The death penalty for those stealing corn is now threatened by the Soviet authorities, who explain this draconic action with the assertion that "there are some constitutions counter-revolutionary crimes and must be punished as such. These stringent measures are by independent observers attributed to the fact that in numerous villages the peasants failed to supply the requisite quantities of corn and concealed part of the crop, often working in the fields during the night in order to evade detection. Special "harvest brigades" are now being dispatched into various regions to superintend the harvesting work. — Trans-Oceanic Kuo Min.

BISHOP ATTACKS
"CHEAP PRESS."*People Easily Led Into Trouble.*MENACE TO NATION.

The Bishop of Salisbury (Dr. St. Clair Donaldson) attacked "the cheap press" in a speech at Salisbury Diocesan Training College. He described it as "a menace to the nation."

He said that to-day the great menace was that the democracy had power, without the capacity to use the power rightly, and without the capacity to judge. People could read and write, but they could not make a proper choice between the better and the worse.

There was a danger that the people would allow themselves to be led wrongly by wrong leaders. There were two great factors—the cheap press and the cinema.

No one could read the cheap press without feeling desperately anxious as to the power of the people to choose between the better and the worse.

What did the cheap press talk about? Absolutely nothing except dirty sex affairs, murders and all that went to make for an unhealthy and unclean life. The cheap press was a menace to the nation.

"Age of Cranks"

The cinema was not much better, though that was now in the hands of investigators. These things were an index of the public taste, and showed what a desperate need there was for some education if the people were to be lifted out of this condition and enabled to judge rightly and properly.

We were living in an age of freak religion. There was no one who could not start a new sort of cult, and he was clever enough to use the Press he could get adherents. People were not able to use their critical faculties.

The present age was an age of cranks and demagogues. Let people should fall utterly into their hands, they had to have more education.

EMPIRE WOOL INDUSTRY.*Two-Thirds Of World's Export Trade.

London, July 27.

The Empire Marketing Board has issued an elaborate 200-page statistical survey of Empire and foreign production of wool. It estimates the world's sheep population at 800,000,000 producing 3,500,000,000 to 4,000,000,000 pounds weight of wool annually, of which 1,500,000,000, including the world's best, comes from Australia, South Africa, and New Zealand. After reviewing production prices for the past 40 years, it concludes:—

"There has been no exceptional increase in sheep population or wool production in recent years. The Empire maintained its share of sheep at a third and wool production at a half. The Empire wool export trade is two-thirds of the world's. There is no abnormally large accumulation of stocks of raw wool in the principal exporting countries, and no large stocks have been accumulated in the effort to maintain prices; while proposals to restrict sales and stabilise prices have been vigorously opposed."

MR. "FRED" SIGIST.

When Mr. George Bernard Shaw was asked some time ago to comment upon a certain Atlantic flight, his retort was something like this: "It is the machine that has flown the Atlantic, not the man."

If Mr. Shaw is right—and one would hate to suggest to him that he is wrong—then Mr. Frederick Sigist is deserving of much praise from his fellow-men. He is one of our leading aeronautical designers, and is the man chiefly responsible for the latest Hawker Aircraft with which the R.A.F. is equipped.

A broad-shouldered man of a cheerful disposition, he is extremely reticent about his own achievements. Indeed it would be courtiering trouble to pay him any compliment in his presence.

Cancer Cure Sought By Tests On Mice*Duke Of York Speaks Of Progress*TOBACCO EXPERIMENT

An official account of experiments carried out with mice to find a cure for cancer by Dr. Thomas Lumsden at the London Hospital appears in the ninth annual report, issued on July 12, of the British Empire Cancer Campaign. Dr. Lumsden found that:—

Of 47 mice suffering from spontaneously arising cancer 34 (74.7 per cent.) were cured by inoculating refined and concentrated anti-cancer serum into the tumours;

Of 40 cancerous mice treated as "controls" by inoculations of concentrated normal serum not one was cured and all died of cancer. In a high proportion of the cured mice (90 per cent.) it was possible to show that the mice had been rendered immune to cancer as the result of the treatment.

Dr. Lumsden explains that when an anti-cancer serum is split up into its different component parts all the anti-cancerous elements are contained in one particular fraction—namely, the Euglobulin fraction. By rejecting the other useless and toxic parts of the serum it was now practicable to give in this form (Euglobulin) about ten times as large a dose of cancer-destriving substance as was previously possible.

Eighty mice suffering from spontaneous cancer were divided into two groups of forty each. Group A (the "experimental") mice were treated with Euglobulin derived from anti-cancer serum, while Group B (the "control") mice were treated with the Euglobulin fraction on the serum of normal sheep or horses. In addition to the mice cured in Group A there were seven other mice in which the cancer was completely destroyed.

Difficulties Ahead. Dr. Lumsden adds: "The hope that it may be possible to attain an equal degree of success in the treatment of human cancer by employing anti-cancer serum, Euglobulin, naturally arises. There is, however, yet no certainty that this will be so—in any case there are sure to be many difficulties and disappointments to start with. There is much to learn in regard to the technique, dosage, etc., most suitable to human cases, and at first only late and otherwise hopeless cancers can be dealt with, since it is unjustifiable to delay surgical removal for the sake of any new form of treatment until a very strong case can be made out in its favour.

"For the next year or two only selected cases under constant observation in hospitals, and institutions can be treated in this way, at their own desire. It is, therefore, earnestly asked that no requests for serum be sent to the Campaign or the writer. If ever anti-serum treatment proves undeniably beneficial to man it will be made available at the earliest possible moment."

The annual report of the Campaign refers to a series of tests at the Department of Experimental Pathology and Cancer Research, University of Leeds, by Professor Kennaway with regard to the power possessed by "mustard gas" of retarding the production of cancer by carcinogenic agents. A 0.5 per cent. solution of mustard gas applied to the skin of mice which were being treated with dibenzanthracene, the most potent cancer-producing substance so far encountered, entirely prevented the appearance of tumours. The conclusion is therefore suggested that mustard gas exerts a biological effect on the body cells whereby, in some curious and unknown manner, the effects of the cancer-producing substance are counteracted.

Experiments With Tobacco. The conclusion was reached as the result of extensive investigation at the Birmingham centre that tobacco smoking plays little or no direct part in the production of cancer. Certain tars were extracted from tobacco during its consumption in wooden and clay pipes in conditions resembling as closely as possible those met with in ordinary smoking. The tars were distilled and, after being rendered non-toxic, were applied to mice in alcoholic solution. Out of a large number of mice so treated only one developed cancer, and the view is expressed that it was probable that this isolated case was unconnected with the tobacco.

With regard to the radium treatment of cancer the report states: "The results are rather disappointing; the number of persons cured on a three-year basis is not as great as was hoped would be the case. Three years is all too short a period. It must be remembered, on the other hand, that the technique of radium treatment is at present in process of development. No final conclusions are therefore possible. There are, indeed, encouraging signs that the percentage of cures is tending to increase as refinements in the methods of applying radium are introduced and as knowledge grows."

Dwindling Resources. The Duke of York, who presided at the annual meeting of the Campaign at the House of Lords on July 12, said: "There is much to be read in the report which makes real progress, and if we can obtain the financial help so vitally necessary for this work we may look with confidence to finding the solution which will save much suffering throughout the world."

ARMS SMUGGLED TO SLAVE TRADERS*Abyssinia Denuded
By Raiders.*BRITISH SOIL INVADED

London, Aug. 1.

Thousands of rifles—probably numbering 40,000 in the last few months—are being smuggled into Abyssinia for use by slave traders, according to reports reaching London.

"One of the most fertile districts on the borders of Abyssinia has been denuded of people by these slave raids," Lord Noel-Buxton told the "Daily Herald".

"Now some of the slavers are crossing into British territory in search of captives." Six hundred people took part in a raid in March from Abyssinia into Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, in which 27 members of the Beir tribe were killed by the raiders.

Twenty-seven women and 55 children were captured, and 300 head of cattle carried off, according to information in the possession of the British Government.

It is believed that by now the captives have reached Arabia to be sold in the slave markets there.

"Definite Evidence." The allegations of gun-running, in some cases, put the number of rifles smuggled into the country in the last few months at 400,000. The present price of a healthy child sold as a slave is three rifles.

"I have definite evidence that gun-running is carried on," Mr. John H. Harris, of the Anti-Slavery Society, said to a "Daily Herald" representative. "Deals in slaves are made with rifles as the price."

The latest raid (the subject of questions in the House of Commons on Monday) is, according to the Colonial Office, the third into British territory since 1922.

A Slavery Patrol is now working in the Sudan under British control.

Representations are being made for this patrol to be equipped with at least one aeroplane for reconnaissance purposes.

Lord Noel-Buxton, who has only just returned from Abyssinia, said: "The raid took place within a few days of my leaving the country, after the Emperor and two of his chief Ministers had almost convinced me that they were doing everything to bring to heel the unruly tribe in the outlying parts of the country."

(Continued from previous Column.) direction our resources are growing less year by year. It would be nothing short of a tragedy if our work had to be reduced from lack of adequate funds."

Sir Thomas Horder, the King's physician, said there had been no slackening of the quest both for the cause and for the treatment of cancer. It was a sound policy to pursue both quests with equal vigour, and it was impossible to say along which of those two lines they would first achieve control of the disease.

Referring to the work by Dr. Lumsden, Sir Thomas said, "Even though this advance refers to the mouse cancer and not human cancer, this line of research appears to me to become more and more promising."

Mustard Gas Cure. Lord Reading, in presenting the annual report of the British Empire Cancer Campaign recently announced that there was a possibility of mustard gas proving a cure or a preventative of cancer.

In enlarging on the point, he said it was now established with a certain solution that mustard gas applied to the skin of mice entirely prevented the appearance of tumours.

Later in his report, Lord Reading said there had been extensive investigations into the relationship between smoking and the production of cancer, and it was found that smoking played little or no part in causing cancer.

The report detailed experiments made with a serum called "anti-cancer" which had been found that mice suffering from cancer could be cured by injecting into the tumours a certain amount of this serum.

HARBOUR OFFICE.

Good Freight Figures Reported.

The Harbour Office Reports for the 24 hours ended 9 a.m. yesterday gave a free movement of vessels with a high tonnage. Freight rates were up to the mark, both the inwards and throughs reaching five figures. The total tonnage entered was 49,527.

There were 16 inward registries, of which 11 were British and four of four figures, while of the 13 throughs, 11 were British and six of four figures. Two vessels arrived in ballast.

Passengers entered during the period included 184 Europeans and 1,809 Asiatic deck, British vessels carrying 2,142 out of the total in all classes.

MIRACLE MOTORS IN MISS ENGLAND III

Racing Craft Built Like Fine Watch.

PERFECT IN DETAIL

London, Aug. 15.

Lord Wakefield's racing motor boat Miss England III, in which Mr. Kaye Don achieved a new world's record of 119.81 m.p.h. on Loch Lomond recently, and which is now in America to race Commodore Gar Wood for the Harmsworth Trophy, was constructed at the Hampton launch works of Messrs. John I. Thornycroft and Company, Limited, Thornycroft House, Smith-square, London, S.W.1. The hull of Miss England III is 35 ft. in length, with a beam of 9 ft. 6 in., and two skins of mahogany are used with oil fabric between them to ensure watertightness. The inner skin is diagonal, and the outer longitudinal, while a third skin, forming the step, is built up into the hull from the bow.

The form of the hull was designed as the result of extensive model experiments, the first series of which was carried out in Sir John Thornycroft's private tank at Pembroke, with the assistance of Miss Blanche Thornycroft. The preliminary model tests were afterwards checked over in the tank at the National Physical Laboratory, but in neither case was it possible to run the model at a sufficiently high speed to enable exact data of the boat's performance at full speed to be obtained directly. The manoeuvring tests carried out at Hampton to ascertain the turning capabilities of the hull at speed were made in a particularly interesting manner. The model, fitted with a forward rudder, was propelled by means of rockets placed aft. The forward rudder was set and held in position by a piece of gun cotton which was burnt through when the model had attained its full speed, enabling the rudder to be pulled hard over by means of a rubber band. This experiment showed that the sudden change in direction did not affect the stability of the boat. It will be remembered that Miss England II, was unable to turn at high speed, and Lord Wakefield stipulated that her successor should be capable of doing so, so that she should be able to compete more effectively in the British International Trophy races to be held at Detroit in September.

The power plant of Miss England III consists of two new Rolls-Royce engines, exactly similar to those fitted in the Schneider Trophy seaplane in which Flight-Lieutenant Stainforth last year established a world's air-speed record of 407.5 m.p.h. This engine is a modified and improved form of the R-type aero engine first evolved for the Schneider Trophy Contest of 1929. It has 12 cylinders of 6-in. bore, with a piston stroke of 6.6 in., and

SHIPPING HELD UP.

Messrs. Butterfield and Swire, local agents for the s.s. Teiresias, have not received any message from the ship, but are expecting news to-morrow. The Teiresias should have arrived here this evening, but owing to the weather it is doubtful if she will berth before Sunday morning.

No Anxiety.

The Kitano Maru due here at 5 p.m. to-day is expected to reach Kowloon Bay by 5 p.m. to-morrow. No message has been received since the one notifying the local N.Y.K. office of her delay, but no fears are entertained for her safety.

Local shipping circles have received reports that both the Ranpura and the Kitano Maru ran right into the middle of the storm zone, and spent many hours battling with the raging seas, which swept over the decks, and dashed spray over the highest part of the superstructure. The Dollar liner, President Jefferson, apparently missed the full force of the storm, and although details are scant, it is the general opinion that she ran round the edge of it, being some hours behind the Ranpura.

Missing Mail.

The missing mail, due over the Siberian route, will arrive here shortly, according to a statement made to the China Mail by Mr. M. J. Breen, the Post-master General, this morning.

Mr. Breen said that one mail was already on the way but whether or not it would prove to be the missing mail, was a matter of conjecture. At the moment there was no means of telling.

If it proved to be a later mail, Mr. Breen said, then it would seem that the missing mail would have been on a train that was stranded between washouts on the Chinese Eastern Railway, during the recent floods.

each engine develops about 2,200 h.p. at a crankshaft speed of 3,200 r.p.m. The weight of each engine, which are, of course, supercharged, is only 1,630 lb. The fuel consumption at full throttle is at the rate of over 300 gallons per hour for the two engines, and the tank capacity provided is 250 gallons. The drive from each engine is taken forward to separate gear boxes in the bows and thence downwards and sternwards to twin propellers rotating at 7,500 r.p.m. The propellers, it may be mentioned, are of high-tensile steel, machined from the solid, the steel being supplied by Messrs. English Steel Corporation, Limited, Sheffield, who also supplied the steel for the propeller shafts and brackets, rudders and bearings, tiller arms, and connecting-rods, &c., as well as for the crankshafts and some other parts of the engines. The gear-boxes and transmission, as well as the engines, are water cooled, the water temperature being indicated by dials on the dashboard.

THRILLS PLANNED FOR NAVY WEEK.

Mimic Warfare Part
Of Programme.

100,000 VISITORS GOING.

Tea in the hangar of an aeroplane carrier.

A broadcast from a diving submarine.

A battle with "pirates," who, by order of the Admiralty, will have clean water to swallow when they fall overboard!

These will be some of the thrills provided for Navy Week visitors this year.

The festival opened on July 30th in three towns—Plymouth, Portsmouth and Chatham.

Plymouth will provide the aeroplane carrier teas—and also allow its visitors to walk under the keel of one of these vessels.

The most exciting event, however, will be the rescue of a British steamer from "Chinese pirates." Last year this took place in the dockyard basin—and the pirates swallowed a lot of disagreeable water! So this year the authorities have arranged for the rescue to take place at sea—the water is cleaner!

Many Visitors. Portsmouth's 100,000 visitors will take possession of the Nelson, the most powerful battleship in the world, and the Hood, the world's largest.

Or they will go back in history to the Victory, Nelson's flagship.

They will see men escaping from submerged submarines with the Davis apparatus, and "Mystery Boats" will show them how submarines were lured to their doom during the war.

A broadcast from a diving submarine, life-saving and drill displays have also been arranged.

At Chatham a hundred men will sing sea-shanties and there will be oldtime, battleships in which visitors will be able to sail.

The Battle of Zeebrugge will be fought in miniature.

STRANGE CASE OF WOMAN RECLUSE.

Jewel Box Lashed To Bed.

NO KNOWN RELATIVES.

An inquest was held recently in the case of a woman recluse who lived a life of mystery alone in a large house in Russell Square, Brighton, where she was found dead.

The woman, Polly Mary Fitzpatrick, aged 78, had shunned the companionship of other people for several years.

A steel box containing jewellery of considerable value, lashed to her bed, was found when police officers broke into the house.

Mr. W. D. Peskett (the coroner), who sat without a jury, said that in ordinary circumstances it would not have been necessary to hold an inquest, but the police had been unable to trace any of the dead woman's relatives or anyone able to register death.

Dr. William Lindeck said that he saw the woman's body lying on the floor of one of the bedrooms near the bed. She had been dead for at least a fortnight. He had made a post-mortem examination, and found that death was due to heart disease.

Birth Certificate.

Sergeant H. C. Wren, the coroner's officer, said that he was handed at the police station a deed box and an attache case in which were papers and documents, some relating to Polly Mary Fitzpatrick. One was a birth certificate showing that P. Mary Fitzpatrick had been born on January 28, 1860, and baptised in the Roman Catholic Church in the parish of Ravens Grange, co. Wexford. There were several cheques signed "Mary Fitzpatrick."

The steel box was forced open and found to contain a large amount of jewellery. "She lived entirely alone," said Sergeant Wren, "and although I have made every possible inquiry I have been unable to trace any relatives."

Sergeant H. W. Harnes said that he forced a window at the back of the house and found the body. He and other officers made a search of the whole house, which consisted of ten rooms, all fully furnished. Except for a collection of dust the house had been kept clean. The gas installation had been turned off.

Without hearing further evidence the coroner recorded a verdict of death from natural causes; adding that he was satisfied that the body was that of Polly Mary Fitzpatrick.

TRAGEDIES AT GALLIPOLI RELIVED IN "TELL ENGLAND"

HIGH PRAISE FOR "LOVERS COURAGEOUS."

R.M.N. Tisdal Likely To Join The Pictures.

An impressive British war picture, from the story by Ernest Raymond, "Tell England" narrates of the ghastly tragedies at Gallipoli. We see the stark vividness of it all. That memorable April 25 when the Anzacs landed and were mowed down like grass. Regiment after regiment struggling for occupancy—and after months of fighting against the greatest odds—EVACUATION.—Just that—after thousands of lives had been wasted. This film hides nothing. It is slow in starting, but don't go prepared for criticism—just look at it from the point of view that it proves the nobility of those gallant men who landed on the gun-riddled Peninsula, and gave their lives for Great Britain.

Carl Harbord, as the sensitive Edgar Doe of the novel, gives an appealing characterization. Good-looking Tony Bruce (ex-Naval officer) may seem a little amateurish, but there, to me, lay his chief charm. He is so natural that one is bound to lose sight of the environment of the studio and stage technique. You are just looking at real boys, eager for duty-willing to die. The rest of the cast do well in small parts—and the battle scenes are ably directed by Anthony Asquith and Geoffrey Barkas.

At the finish I was reminded of those glorious lines by the late Rupert Brooke—"If I should die, think only this of me—that there's some corner of a foreign field that is forever England, there shall be in that rich earth, a richer earth concealed. A dust whom England bore, shaped, made aware—Gave once her flowers to love, her ways to roam—A body of England, breathing English air."—Queen's.

"Lovers Courageous." Norbert Lusk, the famous picture critic wrote to me of "Lovers Courageous"—"It is delightful, dialogue sparkling and revealing, and the two leads—Robert Montgomery and Madge Evans are perfection, and have never done anything better." High praise indeed.

Frederick Lonsdale wrote this play, and it is rumoured that it is the early struggles and failures of the famous author himself. It is not a big production, and depends on a worn-out story, which will make you rather doubt how such a charming idyllic love tale can be made so intensely interesting. A rich girl tosses everything overboard to starve with a struggling playwright. The whole cast is British (with the exception of the stars). Roland Young, as usual, makes you want to see more of him. In the cast we have Frederick Kerr, Halliwell Hobbes, Alan Mowbray and others. I can guarantee you will think, as I do, that this is a film to put in my "Page of pictures to be remembered."—Queen's.

"The Outsider." (NOT a racing story) was a sensation on the stage, with Besiege Faber, Isobel Elsom and the late Norman Kinnel (who re-enacts his part in the film version). Harold Huth, ex-motor salesman, nephew of Eva Moore, tying for first place with Jack Buchanan as the most popular leading man in British films, as Anton Ragatzky. He adopts a broken accent, but reminds me considerably of Paul Cavanagh. Joan Barry, as the crippled girl, proves that she has more than sugary prettiness.

Frank Lawton as the unfaithful lover-remembered on stage and screen as "Young Woodley"—Mary Clare, Annie Esmond, and a most capable cast, under the able direction of Harry Pachman (American who learnt his work with Rex Ingram), and the able assistance of a famous German cameraman help to make this a gripping drama. It is from the interesting story by Dorothy Brandon. The question called forth to answer in this play is, whether Doctors, bound by convention, should recognize unqualified genius—and we see the so-called quack succeed where the experts failed. Don't miss this.—King's.

"After To-morrow." A whole-some, poignant, CLEAN little story of poor, commonplace people. A young couple desiring to marry, stopped by eloping mother-heart-diseased father, domineering mother-grandly acted by a stage recruit, Josephine Hull who makes the mother who makes her selfishness under a sugary sweetness and tears—a living character. Charles Farrell does the best work of a long time, not another Chico, but quite appealing, Marian Nixon is certainly to be welcomed back and is charming. Minna Gombell, William Collier and others will give you a most pleasant evening in the coolest spot in this city.—King's.

Coming Attractions. Coming shortly, the long-awaited "Mata Hari" with Greta Garbo, Lionel Barrymore and Ramon Novarro. It is a far-fetched story of a glamorous spy. No matter what I think of it personally, it will have marvellous box-office appeal. Bound to win.—Queen's.

Edmund Lowe and Claudette Colbert are well cast in "Misleading Lady." Learn some lessons in cave-man stuff. Laugh at Stuart Erwin as the escaped inmate who thinks he is Napoleon. Not great but quite enjoyable.—King's.

Chester Morris and Allison Lloyd in "Corsair." All about a hijacker who pirates cargo from bootlegging ships off the American coast—full of thrills and action. Coming, some day to the Central.

Marie Dressler and Polly Moran in the interesting play "Politics," followed by Edward Everett Horton in a racing comedy, "The Hot Tent"—and then Sophie Tucker in "Honky-Tonk." The last of the red-hot Mammas dominates the film.—Star.

"Rich Man's Folly." "Rich Man's Folly" with George Bancroft, who places money above any human feeling and loses out. His regeneration is brought about when he destroys a ship in order to make possible the success of his rival—who has married his daughter. Both these parts are well played by Frances Dee and the late Robert Ames. The most appealing figure is little David Durand (take your handkerchiefs). Juliette Compton vamps as usual. Bancroft is in his element. The story was suggested by Dickens' "Dombey and Son"—British critics awarded it three stars. I liked it immensely.—Oriental.

"Shadow of the Law." William Powell in "Shadow of the Law," gives a performance that silences criticism. The picture is devised to entertain, and it assuredly does. Young man accompanies pretty girl to hotel rooms. Confronted by a wicked past—there is a scuffle—man falls out of window to his death. The hero is arrested, sent to life imprisonment. He escapes to a Southern city, works hard, and falls for the daughter of his employer. Cannot propose till past is revealed and his innocence proved. I feel like writing "To be continued in our next." Go to the Oriental and see Natalie Moorhead is lovely, while Marian Shilling is a pretty conventional heroine. Richard Tucker and the rest of the cast are up to standard, but the unusual finish, and the whole thrilling drama plus the grand performance turned in by Powell make it one of the best pictures of the month.—Oriental.

HOLLYWOOD GOSSIP.

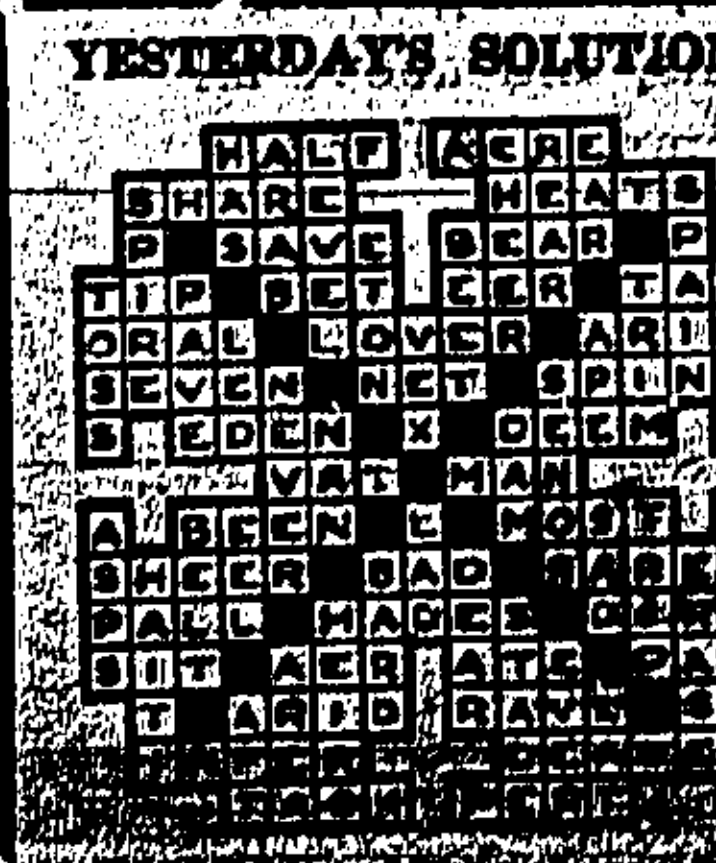

News From Here and There. Lyda Roberts recently seen here in "Dancers in the Dark," is now being called the Scandinavian actress. A little while ago in the Shanghai cabarets, she was Polish. In Jack Oakie's release about the Olympic Games—"Million Dollar Legs," she has the role of the vamp. Lyda was a chorus girl on Broadway.

She was given a chance one night to understudy in "You Said It"—she was such a success that she got the part. Gary Cooper has landed the sought after part in "Farewell to Arms"—and as soon as he has finished "Madame Butterfly," will start work with Helen Hayes. Cecil B. de Mille is again revelling in baths. Exact copy of the famous bath used by Poppea, wife of Nero now being made for "The Sign of the Cross." Adrienne Allen, the English girl who steals the picture from Sylvia Sydney in "Merrily we go to Hell" will play Mercia, and Charles Starrett-Marcus.

Kay Francis will return to her old studio and work with Miriam Hopkins and Herbert Marshall. Erwin as the escaped inmate who thinks he is Napoleon. Not great but quite enjoyable.—King's.

Richard Arlen is with Victor McLaglen and Edmund Lowe. Stuart Erwin has refused stardom as he prefers to be made a featured player. Nils Asther has landed the principal part with Barbara Stanwyck in "The Bitter Tea of General Yen"—Constance Cummings is wanted in another story. John Gilbert who was a heavy loser in the recent Beverly Hills Bank smash, is most enthusiastic about his new play which he wrote himself, also his new wife, who plays his leading lady. She is Virginia Bruce.

Jean Harlow has married one of the most liked men in the film colony—Paul Berg. The man who has helped innumerable people to and fame and fortune. "Grand Hotel" will be filmed by M.G.M. as a burlesque with Charlotte Greenwood as the actress (Greta Garbo), Jimmy Durant as the Baron (John Barrymore). Polly Moran as the stenographer (Jean Crawford) and Stuart Erwin as the theatrical agent (Paul Berg). A personal anecdote about the picture is shown in London. It is a progressive film for the Hollywood crowd.

CARD GAME BRAWL BRINGS CHARGE.

Fight Follows Loss
Of Stakes.

A game of cards will show the disposition of any man. Such was the case when Chui Cheung, a coolie, was arraigned before Mr. Fraser in Kowloon Police Court in answer to an assault charge to-day.

According to the complainant, Li Fook, the defendant had struck him with a heavy screw driver. He was injured on the shoulder and was sent to the hospital.

The argument started when Li Fook played the wrong card, causing Chui Cheung to lose the game and money. Words ensued which resulted in a fight.

Mr. Fraser fined the defendant $15 and bound him over on $100 for 12 months. In passing sentence, His Worship told the defendant that he was getting off very lightly.

GENERAL SAN JURJO WINS REPRIEVE.

Rising in Seville. The Royalist revolt in Spain broke simultaneously in the capital, Madrid, and in Seville, where General San Jurjo declared himself for the monarchy and rallied two regiments of troops to his side as well as a large number of civilian volunteers.

Although, after severe street fighting, the insurrection was quelled in Madrid within a few hours, there was for a time a grave threat that General San Jurjo would be a difficult man to meet. Loyalists all over the country, though they could not join him, were restless and causing the Government concern. The General himself prepared to resist stoutly.

Regiments were hastily despatched from Madrid and elsewhere into Seville and, faced by overwhelming odds, General San Jurjo's little army disbanded. He himself surrendered when he realised his cause was hopeless.

Ex-King Alfonso, during this time, was spending a holiday in a Czechoslovakian resort and when informed of the insurrection expressed some surprise but declined to comment. He has not commented upon it since.

PREMIER'S GREETING TO DELEGATES.

The Prime Minister, whose visit to the King was to have taken place this week, will leave London on Monday for Balmoral. It is probable that Mr. J. H. Thomas will also be a guest of the King next week.

Mr. Baldwin's Reply. S.S. "Empress of Britain," whose passengers include the majority of members of the United Kingdom delegation to the Ottawa Conference and the British Olympic team, is due at Southampton at 10.30 a.m. to-day.

Mr. Baldwin has telegraphed to the Prime Minister in reply to his message of greeting, "Please accept our warmest thanks for your generous message. Looking forward much to seeing you." British Wireless Service.

PITCHERS CLOUTED FOR HOME-RUNS.

Ruth and Lou Gehrig, when he hit his forty-seventh of the season. He has now only 14 homers to get to shatter Ruth's world record of 60, established in 1927. McNair also made a circuit hit to give the Athletics a big win over the Browns, for whom Burns hit a homer.

Tate hit a four-bagger to give the Red Sox their 32nd win of the series, the White Sox going down by 5 to 4 in a thrilling struggle.

The following were the results of yesterday's games:—

AMERICANS FLYING TO NORWAY.

Hop From Coast To Coast Of Ocean.

New York, Yesterday. Another attempt at flying the Atlantic began to-day when the young Americans, Clyde Lee and John Bochen, set off in a plane. They hopped off from Harbour Grace, Newfoundland, and are setting their course to reach Oslo in a non-stop flight.—Reuter.

RUSSIA DUMPING IN BRITAIN.

No Action Being Taken.

It is understood that M. Neville Chamberlain gave an intimation of first importance regarding Britain's policy towards Russia.

He indicated that Britain would not take action against the Soviet in regard to the dumping of wheat and lumber, and this despite strong Australian representations.

Britain's decision was influenced by the fact that Russia owes her huge sums for manufactures bought, and this immense debt would not be paid if Britain barred Russian products.

Australia, for several months, has been urging Britain to prohibit Soviet dumping, particularly wheat, the strongest argument being that, if England declined to buy from Russia, wheat would not enter any other market, because English ports alone offer storage for wheat arriving, and finance for cargoes.

Apparently Australia's representatives have not convinced the British Government.

A BACHELOR'S STRONGHOLD.

Vienna's first skyscraper, sixteen stories high, is approaching completion in the famous Herrengasse. It is to be a stronghold of bachelor-dom.

The Austrian capital is full of huge flats and old aristocratic palaces which are empty because the impoverished population cannot afford the cost of up-keep of roomy quarters. Unmarried persons all obliged to live in furnished rooms.

The "Bachelor's Stronghold" attempts to remedy this. A binding clause of the lease is that none of the "bachelors" of either sex inhabiting these dwellings may marry, on pain of expulsion.

EXCAVATIONS CEASE

The temple excavations at Trier, which have been going on very successfully for some years under the auspices of the German Reich and Prussian Academy of Science will have to be discontinued, it was announced as further funds are not available.

Houston, Tex. One dog in this city has been run over by 100 automobiles, but hasn't been hurt once. City Marketmaster J. D. Reed sits on his front porch and watches the dog go through his tricks. "Trapped by a speeding auto, he gets out of the path of the machine's wheels, lies flat and nonchalantly permits the machine to pass over him," Reed explains.

Always have GARDAN in the house!
In the tropics pain and illness are particularly liable to appear suddenly. In headache, toothache, neuralgia, rheumatism, sciatica, lumbago, muscular pains and above all in fever and in accompanying symptoms, GARDAN is of definite value.
When you are out of sorts remember
GARDAN
